Statement of Purpose

Petroleum Abstracts is an abstracting and indexing service within Energy Abstracts. We have the world's leading database for petroleum exploration and production related to scientific and technical information.

Petroleum Abstracts* Bulletin

Petroleum Abstracts contains abstracts of the worldwide technical literature pertaining to petroleum exploration and production. Journals, patent gazettes, full-text patents, conference proceedings, standards, books, dissertations, and other publications are reviewed for technical material of interest to professionals in the following areas: geology, geo- physics, geochemistry, drilling, well logging, well completion, production, reservoir studies, transportation and storage, alternate fuels, business and economics, HSE, and science and engineering.

Bulletin records are distributed weekly via email in various formats. Subscribers may elect to receive either the entire Bulletin electronically or to receive various record subsets based on user interest profiles. Contact Petroleum Abstracts for subscription information on these services.

TULSA Database

As each issue of the Bulletin is produced, the same material (with an expanded set of index terms) is added to an online file, the TULSA database. This database, growing at a rate of about 40,000 items per year, contains more than 1.3 million Petroleum Abstracts entries dating from 1965. It also includes the Oil and Gas Fields Bibliography, a subfile of earlier references for oil and gas fields around the world. Access to the full TULSA database with abstracts requires the purchase of an annual search license. Contact Petroleum Abstracts for more information on accessing TULSA.

TULSA Database and PA Bulletin

The online TULSA database contains more than 1.3 million entries dating from 1965 to the present. About 40,000 items are added every year. Updated weekly, TULSA gives you the most timely E&P coverage possible.

PA specialists index entries in the TULSA database using a controlled vocabulary of index terms. That provides precise, consistent and comprehensive indexing of related concepts, so you can find the exact information you need.

Petroleum Abstracts provides its BRICKS Online Search Aids product to help you search the TULSA database using PA's indexing vocabulary, which contains about 80,000 technical terms relevant to upstream oil and gas. Using online search aids can improve your results and reduce searching time.

Fifty weeks a year, the Petroleum Abstracts Bulletin provides a concise overview of E&P information. Each Bulletin issue contains hundreds of pertinent entries, most with abstracts of the material covered. It's no wonder so many companies make the PA Bulletin a key part of their information support.

Subscribers to the Petroleum Abstracts Bulletin receive material by email. An annual subscription allows distribution of Bulletin material to all subscriber employees and locations.
